

Dr. Anthony Main is a Fellow in Interventional Cardiology at the Libin Cardiovascular Institute of Alberta at the Foothills Medical Centre in Calgary, Alberta.

Dr. Main received his medical degree from the University of Western Ontario, completed his internal medicine residency at the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal and cardiology residency at the University of British Columbia. He has been working at the Foothills Medical Centre as an interventional cardiology fellow since 2017.

His clinical/research interests include perioperative cardiac risk assessment, transcatheter aortic valve replacement, spontaneous coronary artery dissection and complex percutaneous coronary interventions.