

Anoop Mathew, MD, is a senior fellow in Interventional Cardiology at the Mazankowski Heart Institute of the University of Alberta. Dr. Mathew is currently pursuing a career in structural interventions including the interventional treatment of adult congenital heart diseases. Dr. Mathew had a research portfolio that includes projects like the PANACEA clinical trial which looks at was of reducing infarct size in patients presenting with acute myocardial infarctions. In addition, he is passionate about helping middle and low income countries develop systems of care for STEMI reperfusion.